

RODINIA OIL CORP. PROVIDES UPDATE ON OPERATIONS

Calgary, Alberta – May 17, 2011 (TSX-V: ROZ) - Rodinia Oil Corp. ("Rodinia") would like to update its shareholders and all other interested stakeholders regarding general operations in the Officer Basin, South Australia.

2011 Drilling Update

Rig #16 of Ensign International ("Ensign") is currently mobilizing on its 2,000 kilometre journey to the Officer Basin in Rodinia's Focus Area 1. This process involves approximately 80 heavy truck loads to move the rig and the 40 person drilling camp. The rig sub frame has been completed and Ensign will be raising the derrick over the next week. Weather delays, including additional road closures, and Primary Industries and Resources South Australia ("PIRSA") certification requirements that Ensign must meet, have further delayed the initial start to Rodinia's 2011 drilling program. As a result the spud date for Rodinia's first Officer Basin well, Mulyawara 1, is now expected to occur in early June, 2011.

Rodinia will advise all stakeholders of the actual spud date of Mulyawara 1 in a future press release.

Focus Area 1 Phase III Seismic Program

Rodinia is pleased to announce that the Officer Basin Phase III 2D seismic program on PEL 253 and the west central part of PEL 81 (South Australia) is 80% complete. This seismic program will total 2,536 kilometres and to date, 2,017 kilometres of seismic acquisition has been completed. Approximately half of the survey has been processed and is currently being interpreted. The objective of this seismic program is twofold: to better define the structures around several of Rodinia's 2011 drill targets, and to provide new seismic data in the central part of PEL 81 where no reliable data currently exists.
